Babies in Sheep's Clothing

By Brenda on Jun 16, 2009 in Baby & Toddler, Children, Featured Post

After Babies in Sheep's Clothing founder Lysette Parbhu's searched for a range of lambskin booties in the UK similar in style to a pair given to her first child proved fruitless, the brand was born and everything they do is underpinned by the passionate belief that natural clothing is best for everybody but particularly babies and children.

From baby wear and hats to fantastic Ugg-style booties and slippers, the ranges are designed specifically with babies and toddlers in mind and are completely handmade in rural New Zealand with all the materials ethically sourced and each piece made of natural fibres.

Lambskin and sheepskin clothing looks set to be 'the next big thing' because it allows the body to breathe and regulate its temperature naturally whatever the time of year and unlike plastic or oil based clothing it's not manmade and doesn't make babies and toddlers sweat. The company are also proud to be the exclusive stockists of Weebit hand made merino ranges in the UK and there are no synthetics or polyesters in any of the Babies in Sheep's Clothing ranges so they can go right next to your child's skin from birth – you can literally wrap them in a merino blanket and pop on a pair of our lambskin booties on their feet for the journey home from hospital!

All the items are unisex so can be lovingly passed down to siblings. All items are made from the finest natural fibres available. Check out the range available at <http://www.babiesinsheepscloding.com/>.
